Any time you meet with Terry, he will share a story about his family. No doubt, his family means the world to him. He enjoys watching his grandchildren grow up, catching some Badger games in Madison, hunting, and tapping maple syrup.

Terry is involved with so many community organizations it's a wonder how he has time to serve on the Marshfield Area Community Foundation board. He said the Marshfield Area Community Foundation is an organization that does good in the community. Terry and his wife are committed to doing good as well. They have a donor advised fund and a scholarship set up at the Foundation. Terry and Allean are committed to making sure every kid gets a chance to use the community aquatic center as well as supporting other opportunities to help kids thrive.
